Let's Start!

Take some time to plan your approach.

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe rules and obligations through a wider range of language and expressions in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can plan a strategy.
- I can talk about jobs and work.
- I can present an oral summary.

Ask Your Partner:

- When was the last time you had to confront someone about a difficult issue?
- How did you plan for the conversation?

Let's Explore!

We're going to use the soft approach

* In the "soft approach", employees are treated as individuals.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Janet: Alright Miranda. I will now tell you about the strategy that I've put together.

Miranda: Alright.

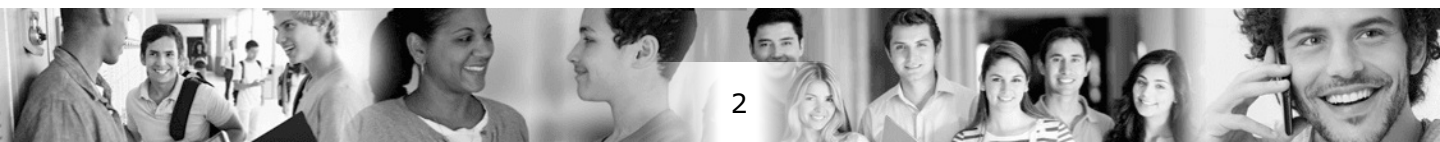

Janet: This is based on an approach that Rocco suggested. We'll call it 'the soft approach'. It's a method which I believe will work for several reasons. First of all, it's honest. Secondly, it appeals to everyone's better side. We're talking about a sensitive matter, of course. Third, it is going to create some real change. After all that is important to me, the public, and the community. Finally, it will be good for business.

Miranda: Sounds great so far.

Janet: I will approach Farmani with the assumption that he is innocent. I will present the news as if it's as shocking for him as it is for Polygon. The idea is that I am coming to help him with a problem rather than accuse him of doing something awful. The final touch will be my own personal concern. This will appeal to his good nature and inspire him with possibilities. Farmani is a man who is eager to look good. This will be another opportunity to rebrand himself.

Miranda: Rocco is a wise mentor.

Janet: Now, Miranda. Our staff will need to be prepared. Polygon will go through a challenging time for awhile. You will have to prepare a staff meeting around crisis management.

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

The Future Using Will

When explaining a strategy, concise wording is important. The Future tense (using will) is used to talk about actions you will take in the future and the expected results.

Actions	Results
Staff will need to ...	This will result in ...
You will assist me by ...	This will appeal to ...
I will present ...	He will see ...
We will approach ...	This will cause ...
	She will understand ...

Examples:

- I will now tell you about the strategy that I've put together.
- I will approach Farmani with the assumption that he is innocent. I will present the news as if it's as shocking for him as it is for Polygon.
- This will be another opportunity to rebrand himself.
- This will appeal to his good nature and inspire him with possibilities.
- You will have to prepare a staff meeting around crisis management.

Learning Points

Summarizing a Strategy for Confrontation

When you are summarizing a strategy for dealing with a difficult situation, you want to stay focused rather than becoming emotional. It is helpful to briefly present the facts of the situation and express your ideas in an organized way. You may include a few brief explanations for some of your points.

Introduce the Situation	Words to Order Your Points and Explanations
I want to tell you about ...	First of all, (or) Firstly, Secondly,
This is based on ...	• (Explanation: After all ...)
It's a method that ...	Third,
The situation is that ...	• (Explanation: Of course ...)
	Next, Finally, (or) Lastly,

Examples:

- First of all, it's honest.
- Secondly, it appeals to everyone's better side. We're talking about a sensitive matter, of course.
- Third, it is going to create some real change.
- After all, that is important to me, the public, and the community.
- Finally, it will be good for business.
